Question Setup

You can type in your set of questions below. You can put them as positive questions or negative, just make sure that you assign the correct points to each answer, depending on what you require. Please ensure that your questions (and answers) fit comfortably into the spaces required, otherwise they may not fit on the questionnaire.

Input up to 5 answers per question, and then assign a points value to each answer (a whole number between 0 and 1000). The more valuable the answer, the more points.

OK, so you have a set of questions to ask a client, prospective client, staff member, or anyone else. You can input up to 15 questions, and assign 5 answers for each, as well as a score for each answer. The beauty of being able to do it this way, is to add 'weight' to any important answers, by giving them a higher score. The person answering the questions will then be allocated the respective score, depending on their answers. The maximum achievable score will also be calculated, and a percentage result will be automatically calculated. This is all down to your assignment of points.

Use the colour percentage allocation to the right, to assign a percentage score to the right colour band. You only need change the two white cells and the grey ones will change accordingly. Leave blank if you wish to use the default settings. Once done, type in a response to people scoring in each colour band. The respective response will appear on the report.

	Default 67%
Green	60%	100%
Amber	31%	59%
Red	0%	30%

Default 32%

Your response if they score in the green

You scored a really high score for requiring our services. You really need to get in touch when you have a moment. There are many options that we can offer you, and you stand to benefit greatly from what we have to offer. You look like you are suited to our products.

Then you can decide what overall score is considered red, amber or green. You can accept the default % settings, or input your own. You can also decide (by your scoring) whether green or red good or bad. Is a high score a sign of a positive or negative result? That is up to you and how you score the questions. You are able here to assign a paragraph of text for each colour category. So the report text shown, will depend on the score reached. You can also have a text if the person scores 100%. If that is good or bad is up to you.

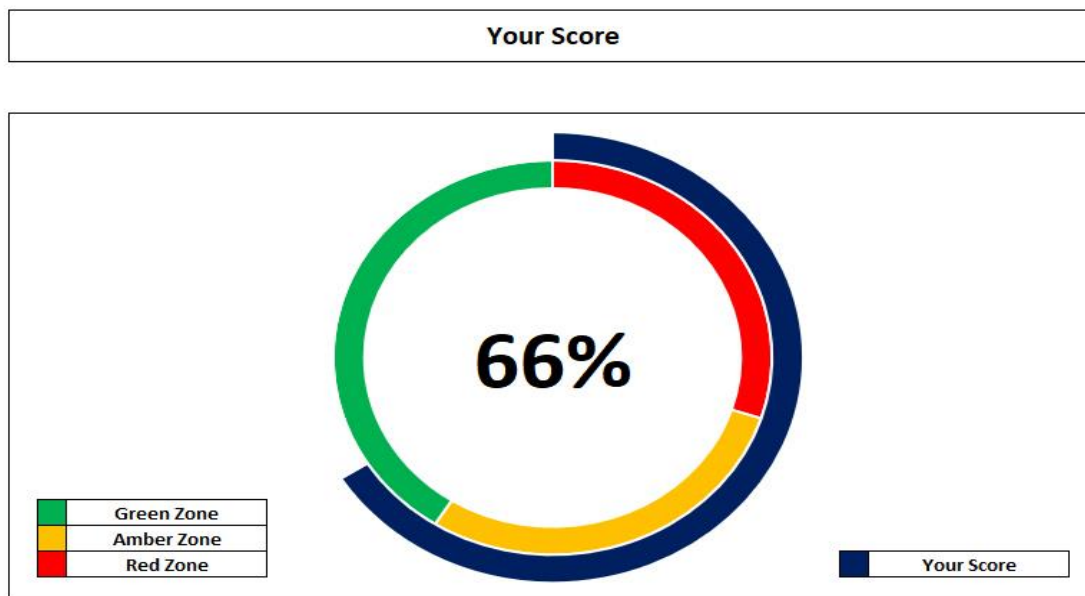

Editing this in conjunction with your scores, means that you have complete control of your customised report.

You then have a set of questions, each with a drop down list of the relevant answers.

Do you fill these in yourself (if the person submits their answers by another means), or do you send this to the person to complete their own answers? That is completely up to you. If you do send it to the person, the workbook is unlocked, so you can hide the pages you don't want them to see. If you do lock the workbook, just remember the password as you can't retrieve it. This page is generated by the info entered on other sheets.

Once you) or the person has completed the questions, the report is populated. The main item on the report is the score graph. This shows you what the person scored, and what colour category they fell into.

This is based entirely on your settings, and the points you assigned to the answers they gave.

Not only that, but the report also shows the text which you assigned to the colour category which they scored. This means that this text will change depending on the category of their score. If they score 100%, whether that is good or bad, it will show the relevant text.

Make sure you have relevant text for each colour category.

Lastly on this report it will show you the best and worst answered question, based on the highest and lowest score. It takes the highest and lowest score based on the points earned for each question compared to what could have been earned for that question (as a percentage).
